COAST CLIMATE HAS DOLLARS AND CENTS VALUE TO WORKMAN AND EMPLOYER

Zip and Energy, Tang and Tonic, in Equal Temperature of South San Francisco; Atmosphere an Asset.

Two things about California have always found a place in the comic sections of the Eastern press. One is that California's climate possessed financial value and the other is that a higher scale of wages for labor in California was a legitimate condition.

The recent high-pressure demand on the part of the Government for industrial production from all its industrial communities has opened the eyes of the world to the great positive value in dollars of California's climate and the great resultant efficiency, also measured in dollars, of California's industrial labor. For it is here that all records have been shattered under the pressure of industrial effort. The most striking feature is steel ship building, results being produced without a parallel in the history of the world.

Last December and January we read of blizzards and more blizzards stifling every form of business and industry in the East, but not one second was lost in any factory on this Coast. All this week the daily press has chronicled heat prostrations in the East, with many fatalities, the great Government shipyards at Hog Island having over 100 cases in one day. In California labor is working day and night and overtime without the slightest impairment of efficiency. All because of a climate that reinvigorates with every breath.

Not only does the climate of the San Francisco Bay region insure an uninterrupted industrial production, but it also insures a workman highly seasoned in industrial stamina whose high efficiency is seen in the volume of production, which in actual figures measures often more than 25 per cent over other parts of the country.

The time lost in freezing and blizzard conditions, the time lost in prostrating heat, the time lost in the recuperation after effort, to say nothing of the slowing down of labor under these conditions, means nothing else than financial loss. Yes, our climate has a financial value—a big financial value. And our wage earner has a value—an actual money value—considerably above the Eastern standard.

Ask any of the men in our steel mills who have worked in other parts of this country, and they will without exception tell you that South San Francisco's climate is the best working climate on earth, and that they have never seen a morning when they were not full of energy for the day's labor. Ask any of our employers, and you will learn that our invigorating climate was the first asset recognized by them.

REV. DR. WALLACE TO RESUME CHARGE

CITY'S FIRST CLERGYMAN WILL HOLD SERVICES IN CHURCH BUILT UNDER HIS ADMINISTRATION.

The Rev. Dr. George Wallace, under whose administration the first building was erected for Christian worship in South San Francisco, has recently returned to the United States, after eighteen years of missionary work in Tokyo, Japan.

Dr. Wallace, although a retired clergyman, can not be idle. He has consented to take charge of Grace Church, coming to South San Francisco every Sunday, and during week days as the need of the mission may require.

Since the Rev. Mr. Kelley left Grace Church for army work, the little parish has had no clergyman to continue the good work which Mr. Kelley had successfully carried on. News has been received that Mr. Kelley is now with our troops in France, doing good service for his country and his church.

Dr. Wallace desires to thank old friends who have welcomed him after many years of absence, and extends a cordial invitation to worship at Grace Church to all people who have no definite church connection elsewhere.

In an interview Dr. Wallace said: "In our time there is a widespread longing for unity among all those who profess and call themselves Christians. The Protestant Episcopal Church is organizing a special effort for church unity—on generous lines. The policy of this church may very properly be based on the threefold platform of unity in essentials, diver-

SOUTH CITY BEARS WIN DOUBLE HEADER

(By T. A. B.)

The Bears must have got tired of getting kicked around, so they went out to Golden Gate Park and won their annual game for this season and next.

The main feature besides the wonderful form displayed by the winners was the great pitching of Herman (Frenchy) Lauchere, who, besides winning both games, struck out fifteen batters, allowed two hits and issued two bases on balls in the first game and struck out eight in the second game.

The hitting of Frank Silva was one of the features of the game. "Guisto" Scampini knocked a fast ball half way across the park. After wandering around the bases for a while he came home.

Jimmy Smith's catch of a high fly on the third base foul line was the best piece of fielding of both games.

In the first game the Mission Federals were easily beaten, 8-1.

A bunch of Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors who were in the crowd decided they could show us up, but after a spirited game we beat them, 5-3, Lauchere pitching all the way.

city and liberty in non-essentials, charity in all things for and with all those who would serve God in sincerity and truth and love."

Dr. Wallace has purchased a home in Burlingame, and, while not a resident of South San Francisco, is a near neighbor and feels a deep interest in South San Francisco, where he was the first and for many years the only minister.

DEATH FOLLOWS FALL FROM SHIP

VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY
QUESTIONED BY WITNESSES TO THE ACCIDENT.

Maurice Borel, a ship worker at Schaw-Batcher's, fell from the scaffolding of the "Isanti" on Tuesday into the canal. Borel's body was found imbedded in the mud at the bottom of the canal, which held less than four feet of water, and all attempts at resuscitation by his fellow workmen were unavailing.

The verdict of the coroner's jury, which investigated the case at Sneider's undertaking parlors in San Mateo, was death from drowning, although it is claimed there was no water on the lungs of the deceased. Blame for Borel's death was placed upon Harry Gooltz, a foreman, and the Schaw-Batcher Company.

Four direct witnesses testified at the inquest, and their accounts agreed in almost every particular.

According to their testimony, Borel's two helpers, Edward A. McQueen and Joseph Sullivan, secured a rope immediately upon Borel's fall. McQueen was about to jump into the water to rescue Borel, who was struggling in the shallow water, when the foreman, Gooltz, appeared and ordered them not to make the attempt because of the likelihood of more lives being lost.

In accordance with his instructions they secured a rowboat, but by the time the boat was rowed all around the big hull any possibility of saving the man's life had been dissipated. Feeling ran high against Gooltz among the workmen on Tuesday.

Verdict Questioned.

Notwithstanding the verdict it is claimed that several witnesses have stated to F. A. Corbuser, safety engineer of the company, that Borel's body sank immediately, indicating that the man had suffered a stroke of heart failure, paralysis, fainting or had become unconscious from shock immediately upon striking the water. This theory would be borne out by the absence of water on the lungs of the deceased.

The deceased was a native of France, 28 years old, and leaves a widow and three-year-old child. His home was at 335 North D street, San Mateo.

Fellow workmen of Borel's made up a purse of nearly $500 for the bereaved widow.

FIREMEN TO DANCE

Elaborate preparations are being made by the South San Francisco Volunteer Fire Department for their annual dance, which will be given in Fraternal Hall on August 24.

The affair, looked forward to annually by the firemen and their friends, is receiving the endorsement and support of the local merchants, who are placing advertising in the program issued by the fire fighters.

Al Margraf's orchestra, well known for its excellent dance music, has been engaged for the occasion, which is expected to draw one of the largest crowds which has ever assembled in Fraternal Hall.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

CITY FATHERS HOLD ACTIVE SESSION TUESDAY NIGHT; NEW DANCE ORDINANCE READ.

The Board of Trustees had an active session on Tuesday. Conservation of light, in accordance with the order of the United States Fuel Administration came in for careful discussion and deliberation. Officer McGraw was instructed by the Board to report all unnecessary lights and to direct private users to conserve on street signs and advertising.

Captain Gleeson of the San Francisco Police Department, who has been appointed by the Government District Guard Inspector for all transbay shipyards, appeared before the Board and requested that the guards at the Schaw-Batcher Ship Works be sworn in as part of the South San Francisco police force, and authorized to make arrests under direction of Chief Conrad.

A special meeting of the Board was called for Wednesday noon, when the names of the guards will be submitted and Captain Gleeson's request complied with.

Hawkins Bill Rejected.

Mrs. Hawkins of San Bruno, who is building the bunkhouses on San Bruno road, presented a bill for $25, alleging that this amount was due for labor because of the city engineer having erroneously indicated the location of the sewer. Refusal of payment of the bill was ordered by the Board.

City Clerk William J. Smith was instructed to address a communication to the Water Company, requesting the installation of a fire plug at the Prest-O-Lite plant, that company having asked that a plug be placed at their factory. The City Clerk was further instructed to request from the Water Company some reply to a recent communication from the Board relative to repairs and installations of fire plugs.

A communication from E. H. Edwards, asking what progress had been made toward installing a temporary fire alarm system, was read. There being no funds in the city treasury for this work, and the Government now frowning down on the selling of bonds for public improvements, the Clerk was instructed to advise the Edwards Company that no action could be taken previous to the making up of the new budget in September.

Peddling Petition.

Charles Guidi presented a petition, signed by numerous merchants, asking that a new peddling ordinance be drafted which would offer a greater degree of protection to permanent merchants of the city. City Attorney Coleberd has such an ordinance in preparation.

The application of the Co-Operative Grocery Company to improve its present building to 20 per cent of its value was granted.

A new dance ordinance was given its first reading. It provides that permits must be secured for every dance held in South San Francisco, and eliminates the present popular "moonlight dance," strictly stipulating that the hall in which dances are being held must be brilliantly illuminated at all times throughout the dance.

CARD OF THANKS.

ROBERT WILSON KILLED BY TRAIN

INSPECTOR AT PACIFIC COAST
STEEL MILL MEETS INSTANT
DEATH WHILE CROSSING TRACKS.

Robert Wilson was instantly killed by southbound Southern Pacific train No. 40 at noon Wednesday.

According to those who witnessed the accident Wilson, who was on his way to lunch, waited for a northbound freight train to pass, and then stepped directly into the path of the fast-flying passenger train. His skull was frightfully crushed from the impact.

When news of Wilson's death spread among his fellow workers and friends at the steel mill, where the deceased was employed as an inspector, deepest sorrow was expressed for the untimely passing of the young man, who was universally liked. Wilson has recently returned from a training camp because of physical exemption.

Robert F. Wilson was born at Akron, Ala., and had passed his twenty-fourth birthday. Funeral services were conducted at the home of the deceased by the Rev. Father Moran on Thursday. Interment at Holy Cross Cemetery.

The deceased was married on July 26 of last year to Miss Evronie Lemmens, whom he leaves to mourn his death. There are no children.

A pathetic coincidence of the accident was that Milton Craig, his brother-in-law, who was on a furlough from San Pedro to visit the deceased and his family, was on the train that killed Wilson.

Robert Wilson leaves a mother and father, three brothers, Luther, Lee and Malloy, and two sisters, Kathleen and Ruth, to mourn his passing.

INCREASE OF $250,000

William J. Smith, City Clerk and Assessor, who is a candidate for Justice of the Peace of the First Township, reports that the South San Francisco tax assessment roll has reached the splendid figure of $2,194,200.

According to Smith, this is a natural industrial and residential property value increase on new additions of more than $250,000.

The Board of Equalization will meet at the City Hall on Tuesday, August 13, at 10 a. m.

THE NATURAL THING.

The propensity of the kaiser to underrate his enemies has received another striking exemplification in the surprise handed out to him and his crack shock troops at the hands of our boys, who, according to the war lord of Germany didn't amount to much and weren't many anyway. The way they have mauled his favorite troops all over the face of the scenery is refreshing to a degree, but no one expected anything else of our boys, that's what they went there for. But the kaiser is a poor guesser, just the same; we recall what he said about a "contemptible little army" on another occasion with a somewhat similar result.

erty and republicanism. She will never go back to her Czar; she will never go back to autocracy. This great struggling mass will be saved for democracy forever, as will be proved, I hope, a little later, on.

Italy, Italy's loyalty, Italy's bravery was not proved when she stopped the Germans on their rush the other day. It was proved when she tore up the damnable Triple Alliance. She is still the Italy she was then. The Italian people have given to the world too many proofs of their republicanism since the days of Cavour and Garibaldi for her loyalty to republican institutions to be crushed now.

And Germany herself some day, the German people, will also reap the tremendous benefit of this war; but only after generations of struggle on their hands and knees to the place where they can look in the light of day the civilized races of the world in the face once more.

You have heard much more eloquently than I can dare to tell you now that one of the things, the great thing is for us to consider our part in this war and what we are going to get out of the war. Are we going to come out of it with only a national purse or a national soul? If this war is going to mean anything to the United States, it must mean the everlasting death of the hyphen, whether the hyphen be British-American or Irish-American or German-American or Italian-American; we must come out of this war with the determination in the heart of every man of intelligence that we will not again stand for any more 50 per cent Americans.

The tremendous impulse to serve is an impulse born of fact not of fiction. All of us are men, I presume, past the age of military service at this time. All we can do is to sit at home and give our very, very small share of devotion to help to try to compare with that of the boys that we have sent ahead of us.

I realize it, and of course you realize it, just what it means to a young man beginning life in a country full of these magnificent commercial opportunities for advancement, to drop his life work, to drop everything, to take his healthy young body and his active brain, and tip that body and that brain against the enemy of the world in the bloodiest conflict the world has ever seen. Now, we cannot sit at home and look on and cheer. That involves the most tremendous sacrifices of which we are capable; because in the last estimate when we come right down to the facts, when we talk with ourselves alone, not spurred on by oratory or flags or bands, we have got in common decency to say: "Well, I will match up as far as I can with that chap who is over there, ready to die for me, and ready to die for the honor of my wife and my daughters." The beast that has let itself loose, crazy with the lust of power, is a beast that cannot be cajoled, that cannot be argued with, but has got to be trampled under foot and killed forever. And our patriotism shows itself in matching that patriotism of the boys who have gone and are going to fight our battles, many of them to die and many thousands of them to come home crippled for life, back into the arch of peace once more.

"I know the message of their feet; I know what mighty work is theirs; I can but lift up hands and meet The threshing floors of God to beat And speed them with unworthy prayers."

With the Candidates and Their Press Agents

[The Enterprise publishes below comments and gossip of the candidates which have reached this office from various sources. They are published simply as news to better acquaint the voters with the records of some candidates as they have been given to us from time to time.

Omissions of names are in no way indicative of opposition to the candidates' election.

The Enterprise is glad to place the platforms of the incumbents and office seekers before the people, but where the mail produces attacks on the personal life of any man, it will be consigned to the waste paper chute leading from the desk to the burlap bag in the cellar reserved for that purpose.

We admit, too, that we are a little impatient with the type of candidate who feels himself appointed to lead his opposition and the people out of the wilderness.—Ed.]

According to County Clerk Jos. H. Nash, the total registration of voters in the county for the primary election August 27 is 12,297, which is slightly in excess of that of the primary election two years ago. It is estimated that nearly one thousand of the young men of the county have gone to the war, practically all of whom would have been eligible to vote. The increase in the number of voters this year, despite this loss, is an indication of the growth of the county in population. The Republicans are well in the lead in the registration with 8341. The Democrats follow with 3154. There are 234 voters registered as Socialists, 44 as Prohibitionists and 105 as Progressives. Those declining to give their party affiliation are 735. Registration, according to the seven incorporated cities in the county, is as follows:

San Mateo, 2573.
Redwood City, 1691.
Burlingame, 1467.
Daly City, 1412.
South San Francisco, 972.

JOSEPH H. NASH

One hundred per cent efficiency in office is the platform upon which Joseph H. Nash is seeking re-election. Those who know, declare that the work of the County Clerk's office is up to the last minute.

No attack has been made on his record of efficiency by his opponent. Being aggressive and independent he has made enemies, as do all men with convictions and the courage to express them.

The work of the Clerk's office requires a technical knowledge of the law which is only acquired after years of experience. Nash is noted over the State as an authority in law pertaining to his office. He has charge of all the court work, the supervisors' records and the issuance of licenses, executions, etc.

The United States naturalization work, which permits of no errors, comes under his charge, and the registration of voters and the conduct of all elections are some more of his duties. Nash's training before coming to the Clerk's office fitted him for his work, and the knowledge that has come to him after twelve years' experience has made him proficient and a valuable man for the county.

HERSMAN, ORGANIZER

Gilroy, Aug. 7.—California apricot, almond, orange, pear, peach, prune, walnut, raisin and bean growers are thoroughly committed to the principle of organization in business. Societies organized in these industries have brought higher prices to producers with no increase to consumers, except in instances where rates have advanced as a result of the war. The elimination of middlemen and the adoption of scientific marketing, on a co-operative plan has solved the problem.

Every prune and apricot grower recalls conditions of three years ago. Impressed with the idea that these might be improved, Hugh S. Hersman of this city, now a candidate for Congress in the Eighth District, undertook the work of organization. Associating with him some of the leading men of the counties where the prune and apricot industries are greatest, he organized the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association. It was hard work, but Hersman succeeded.

Results are apparent. Speculation and gambling in staple articles of food have been abolished, the grower has been given control of his products, has been able to standardize, advertise and protect them on the market. The heavy "tax in transit," which benefited neither grower nor buyer, has been abolished. Other improvements have been of so marked a character that neither seller or buyer would consider for a moment a reversion to old conditions.

A FORTUNATE TRIO

There they are, voters, in undisputed possession of the field, monarchs of all they survey—School Superintendent Roy W. Cloud, Tax Collector Ambrose McSweeney and Martin Walsh.

"Along the cool, sequestered path" to re-election they are comfortably strolling. They are the only county officials who have no opposition. High efficiency, attention to the duties of their office, keeping step with advancement, and the warm friendship and confidence of hosts of voters is the answer.

SENATOR M. B. JOHNSON

He has given his services free for more than one-third of the time during the past twelve years for county and State betterment. His record in the legislature has proven his fitness, his energy and his ability to represent this people in Congress and carry out his constructive and progressive program. Senator Johnson has a pleasing personality, is in the prime of life and has a record for achievement.

Senator Johnson is, first of all, 100 per cent American, and his platform pledges his full non-partisan support in the prosecution of the war and every measure that will aid our boys at the front. He believes that this war is a fight to the finish, and, to uphold America's high ideals, must be followed by a broad, liberal constructive program after a victorious peace. Senator Johnson's past experience in development work has made him acquainted with the needs of every section of the district and he will get results.

STEPHENS' POLICIES

Throughout his public career, Governor Stephens has been a consistent and vigilant supporter of the following policies:

1. Initiative, referendum and recall.
2. Direct primary, short ballot, non-partisan judiciary, presidential primary, election of United States Senators by popular vote and civil service.
3. Government ownership and operation of a line of steamers between Pacific Coast and Atlantic seaports, via Panama canal.
4. Workmen's compensation insurance and safety act; full train crews; free employment agencies; sanitation of factories and workshops.
5. Minimum wage for women; eight-hour law; mothers' pension; child labor protection laws; child welfare.
6. Teachers' pensions; free textbooks; higher wage schedule for teachers in public schools.
7. Railroad Commission; blue sky law; rural credits; flood control; utilization of water resources; development of hydro-electric power.
8. Red light abatement act; penal reforms; abolishment of saloon; ratification of national prohibition amendment.
9. National suffrage for women. Governor Stephens was the first man in California to undertake a speaking campaign in behalf of equal suffrage.
10. Preparedness. As a member of Congress, he championed every measure that had for its purpose the preparing of this country against the possibility of war.
11. Land settlement act; constructive program for returned soldiers; retrenchment and economy without impairment of efficiency of governmental agencies.

FLYNN EFFICIENT

Friends of Assessor D. P. Flynn are certain that the voters of San Mateo county will return him to office at the primary election by one of the finest majorities given to any candidate for a county office. Assessor Flynn has fulfilled the exacting duties of his important office during his term efficiently and capably. The office of Assessor is one of great responsibility and requires a man who is not only of undoubted honesty and integrity, but who is also familiar through actual experience and personal knowledge with the property values of the entire county. Such a man is Assessor D. P. Flynn, and the taxpayers and voters of the county are fully cognizant of this fact, and this, together with his efficient and courteous administration of his office and his absolutely impartial treatment of all with whom his duties brought him in contact, assures him the whole-hearted support of the voters of the county, who are always loath to change a faithful and capable official.

The excellent manner in which Assessor Flynn and his corps of efficient assistants have handled the large business of the Assessor's office during the last two years has fully justified the confidence of the Board of Supervisors who appointed Flynn to fill the unexpired term of the late Clarence D. Hayward, and shows that the choice of the board was an excellent move for the property holders of the county, not one of whom has had the slightest cause of complaint against the manner in which the office of the Assessor has been conducted by Flynn nor against his impartial and equitable methods of assessment.

In the opinion of his friends, such a record certainly entitles the Assessor to re-election, and it seems that his friends will be by far the majority of the voters at the primary election on August 27.

FRANK L. EKSWARD

To the thinking voters of San Mateo county, Frank L. Eksward is the only logical candidate for the office of representative of this county in the Assembly. Eksward's long work as secretary of the San Mateo County Development Association has brought him into intimate contact with every portion of the county and made him more familiar with the needs of the county than probably any other man in the district. Knowing the county and its needs as he does, he is able to represent it intelligently in the legislature, and, when necessary to fight for a bill of importance to his district, his knowledge and reputation for sincere work lend strength to his cause. Besides these essential requirements, the fact that he made such a splendid record during the last session of the legislature, where he represented the people of this county ably and well, should bring him the unqualified endorsement of every one who has the interest of the county at heart.

"Put your X after Eksward" is a slogan which carries with it a boost for San Mateo county. See that you bear it in mind when you go to the polls.—Times-Gazette.

WELLAR A. STEAD

Wellar A. Stead, undertaker of Burlingame, with offices also in South San Francisco, believes he can overcome the small margin by which he was defeated last election.

He has been Deputy Coroner for eight years, four under the late Dr. Plymire and four under the incumbent.

Stead has been a resident of the county for a number of years and is a man of family.

He should make a capable Coroner if the voters decide to place him in charge of that important office.

GEORGE KNEESE KNOWS

George A. Kneese's popularity has grown considerably since his candidacy for the job of County Surveyor four years ago. The excellent conduct of his office and high quality of the work installed under his direction in South San Francisco, Daly City and San Bruno, in which communities he is city engineer, have won him many constituents.

Kneese is a man of proven ability as engineer, and would undoubtedly make an excellent County Surveyor.

He is honest, knows from experience how to handle big jobs, can see where many defects in some already done can be remedied, and is a college graduate.

Kneese is a resident of the city of San Mateo.

CASEY FOR SHERIFF

James T. Casey was born and raised in San Mateo county and served as Supervisor for eight years.

During his term he was instrumental in carrying the $1,250,000 bond issue for good roads in the county, and was a member of the board when the money was invested for the people.

He is a member of the Board of Governors of the San Mateo County Development Association, which conducted the fight for lower commutation fares in the county.

Casey, in an interview, said: "I am a farmer and butcher by occupation, not a politician." His friends believe he will make a good Sheriff if elected—and he has plenty of friends.

GENIAL M. SHEEHAN

Genial Michael Sheehan, incumbent, was paid a high compliment on the efficiency of his administration when Judge Buck recently said, "The county was never so peaceful, Mr. Sheriff." There are only three prisoners awaiting trial in the county jail at Redwood.

Sheehan has a rubber-tired way of conducting his office which has met high approval among the voters.

The incumbent is standing on his record as Sheriff for re-election to office. A three-cornered race at the primaries will probably necessitate a final dash for the office, although some of Sheehan's more optimistic friends claim there is a possibility of his being elected at the primaries.

Sheehan's campaign, as he has conducted it, has been particularly free from accusations against or depreciation of his political opponents, and that is decidedly in his favor.

DR. BROOKE LIKED

It seems to be the general impression of the voters that Dr. W. A. Brooke has made a good Coroner, and the majority of county officers with whom his work brings him in contact are pleased with the manner in which his office has been conducted.

Dr. Brooke is a practicing physician of Halfmoon Bay and has established a splendid reputation throughout the county as a professional man of high standing.

BUCK FOR BULLOCK

Jos. J. Bullock, candidate for District Attorney, in an interview Thursday, stated to The Enterprise that his candidacy has the endorsement of Judge George H. Buck of the Superior Court. He further stated that the recent pamphlet circulated by Mr. Swart was an evident attempt to discredit this endorsement.

Mr. Bullock's supporters make the claim that the wide-awake people know the real issues, and that they are capable of judging the respective merits of the candidates for the office of District Attorney and resent the old-time steam roller methods.

Mr. Bullock has established a high reputation throughout the county as a successful criminal lawyer. He served three terms as District Attorney of San Mateo county.

Cobbett and the Potato.

William Cobbett, the English economist, was firmly convinced that the potato and prosperity could not exist side by side, and he quotes with approval the opinion of Sir Charles Wolseley that on the continent "in whatever proportion the cultivation of potatoes prevails the working people are wretched." He is indeed constantly girding at the vegetables, and in his "Rural Rides" recounts noting with satisfaction in the course of a journey from St. Albans to Chesham that he did not see "three acres of potatoes in this whole tract of fine country."

The Packing Probe

Francis J. Heney concluded the packing probe in March. The release of his report five months later, just on the eve of the primaries, has almost a sinister political significance. The Federal Trade Commission has treated the country to an excellent exhibition of the art of using public property for private advancement.

The evident bias of the commission was confirmed by the appointment of Francis J. Heney, who, upon his appointment, departed from the usual procedure in such inquiries by conducting ex parte hearings at which no attorneys or representatives of the packers were present. As a consequence, Heney had his side of the case presented broadcast in the press, while the packers' side was never presented in public.

If ever a public inquiry was exploited by the investigators and used as a means to gain political preferment, then the packer inquiry was such a one. Dr. Davies, chairman of the commission, resigned in the midst of the hearings, and used some of the material gathered while sitting in the probe in his campaign for Senator from Wisconsin; Mr. Harris followed Dr. Davies' steps in both resigning and campaigning to further his candidacy for Senatorship from Georgia. And now steps Francis J. Heney into the limelight, exploiting his gubernatorial candidacy on the results on the packing probe. "Profiteering" is a word that falls easily and smoothly from the lips of Mr. Heney, who has never faced a pay roll or knows nothing from actual experience of the intricacies of financing immense corporations.

The Federal Trade Commission has not only failed to exactly define the word "profiteering," and failed to demonstrate their ability and capacity to judge of the legitimacy of profits and capital investments with practical sense and discrimination, but have made an obvious attempt to juggle figures.

The commission report tells nothing about the profits of the meat packing companies that was not already known to everybody who reads the reports which the packers themselves send to their thousands of stockholders, but the commission makes omissions and comments which might mislead a reader unfamiliar with such affairs and without other sources of information.

All emphasis is laid upon aggregate profits, but among businessmen the test whether profits are large or small is in their relation to the volume of business handled, the capital employed and the character of service rendered.

The most obvious attempt to juggle figures is found in the three-year aggregate war profit of four large packers and an average one-year profit from the pre-war period, viz.—$140,000,000 against $19,000,000, or an apparent excess of $121,000,000. This comparison is enough to condemn the whole report as misleading and unscientific. The fact of the matter is that the profits enumerated for the years 1915, 1916 and 1917, as quoted by the Trade Commission, do not total $140,000,000, showing there is a positive inaccuracy in the figures.

The Trade Commission sought to convey the impression that the alleged $140,000,000 profit was a clear profit pocketed by the owners of the business. As a matter of fact, much more than half of the earnings was returned to the respective businesses to increase facilities and to finance heavy stocks of goods bought at extremely high prices. For instance, only $10,000,000 of Swift's $34,000,000 profits in 1917 was handed out in dividends. Before the war Swift had to keep about $50,000,000 tied up continuously in stocks of goods in process, in storage and on the way to market; to-day these inventories run over $150,000,000.

There can be no objection to a fair statement of the war profits on the part of the government, as a foundation for excess profits taxation, but there is no excuse for seizing such an opportunity to discredit honest American business concerns, especially those who have done their utmost, and successfully, to meet war demands.

Perhaps the packers are "profiteers," but we would prefer to have the Federal Trade Commission investigate and report on what meats would cost the consumer if there was no such high efficiency in elimination of waste material as is employed by the big packers.

The United States Government itself recently placed orders for millions of dollars' worth of army supplies with the packers the Federal Trade Commission is attempting to discredit. Why was it not placed with those outside the "combine" if they could fill the order more economically?

The Kansas soldier who, after taking part in a battle on the western front, wrote to his mother, "Say, mother dear, I never knew courage was so common," has expressed the sentiment of the nation. We never knew that there was so much latent heroism among the young fellows in the offices, the factories and on the farms of America. Thank God that to our young Americans "courage is so common."

Affairs in Russia seem to us like a play proceeding behind a heavy curtain—sound and noise, but no clear information. If President Wilson send his commission of inquiry there, we shall have some knowledge of the plot and acts.

Let us not consider Quentin Roosevelt's days as incomplete. However brief the life may be, no man's life which is given for his country falls short of full completion.

Ireland Must and England Must

The cause of Humanity is at stake. There are 400,000 men of military age in Ireland who are needed at The Front. The Hun must be defeated. He must be driven back and buried in his own shambles. Ireland's duty is clear. Ireland can not stay out of this fight and ever again hope to gain the sympathetic ear of mankind. Delay is fatal. The Allies may strike the decisive blow, before the honor is given to Ireland to join in. No matter what England does, or England does not do, Ireland must go in now.

The eyes of the world are on Ireland. Though we well know it is the practice of nations to drive the bargain first, such practices are out of harmony with the popular idea of the generous and free-hearted ways of Irishmen. Ireland must go into the fight and soon, with the full strength of their 400,000 new troops to join the thousands and thousands of Englishmen who are already at the Front in the English and American armies.

So much for what Ireland must do!

And now for a word of reproof to England:

There are already hundreds of hundreds of thousands of Irishmen who have been "Over There" in the English Army for three years. But rarely a word of their doing ever breaks through the English censorship. The Englishmen did this, and the Canadians did that; the Scots did this and the Australians did that; the New Zealander did something else. The unformed, and there are many, in America and elsewhere, would never know from the inspired press reports that there are nearly a million Irishmen in the English Army alone. Not a single word of the work accomplished by the Irish soldiers so far in this war have I read. Only there comes along perpetually a detailed and Pickwickian account of the political squabbling in Dublin! Ah, but this is mean and lowly treatment England gives Ireland and Irish soldiers.

Then the other day, in the midst of the flagrant trouble over England conscripting Irishmen, comes news that John French, the general who was not good enough to lead the English into battle, the general who had been promoted backwards, from the chief command of the French Front to command one of England's Home Guard Brigades, is now to be made the big military Pooh-Bah of Ireland.

That's a gr-r-rand and diplomatic choice!

John French is the same English general, stationed in Dublin, who refused to put down the Orangemen rebellion led by that renegade Carson in the times before the war! Could a man be selected with fewer qualifications for the job of bringing order out of chaos in Ireland?

Englishmen are generally supposed to be stupid. When they send an apostate like French, a general who is anathema to the Irish as is French, to rule in Ireland at a time when the Irish are in such a supersensitive and tragic humor, the English diplomacy reaches sublime heights of stupidity and assinnity undreamed of heretofore.

The situation as it exists to-day in Ireland is this: Ireland is united against conscription. Ireland is ablaze with revolution. "The Law" as such is defied and scouted.

The trouble is not that the Irishmen object to conscription as such, but to Englishmen conscripting Irishmen.

Because Ireland is pro-German? Please, my friends, my friends, don't make that mistake. Irishmen and Germans have not a single thing in common.

Irishmen and French have much. Irishmen and Americans have much. They are all intelligent, quick, sympathetic, fair-minded.

Irishmen and Germans, what have they in common? By the gods, and my forefathers, nothing, nothing, not anything! In their heart of hearts, the Irish are aching to get into this fight against the brutal Huns. But they demand to go in as freemen and not as conquered and conscripted subjects of another race.

It's a heart-sickening indictment of England's treatment of Ireland, when the Irish in a wild and suicidal frenzy turn away from friendly France and friendly America, and say, "We'd rather die in Dublin on our doorsteps than fight for an unregenerate England."

The Irish have gone mad.

They have gone mad for this reason. They have heard and listened to much of this high-minded palaver about Freedom for Belgium, for Serbia, for Montenegro, for Bohemia, for Poland, for Hungary, for Rumania, for all the numerically little nations who are under the thumb of the great nations. Ireland believed and trusted. John Redmond, when the war came, offered the resources and man power of Ireland to England and the cause. More than 800,000 Irishmen went into the fight in English uniforms, trusting to England for a square deal. This number is two-thirds of all the men Ireland can possibly give.

And now what? After three years, not one word of hope from England for a subjugated Ireland; a nation that has contributed more to England's greatness in men and accomplishment than can ever be estimated. England offers Irishmen not freedom, but conscription and the chance to die in bonds.

The Irish, who are not English, not of the same country or race at all, but the loyal sons of another country and another race, ask England "What about Freedom for Ireland?" Not conditional freedom, not supervised freedom, but actual freedom!

'Twould cost England so little to take the chains off Ireland? Why not do it? Is there a fair and sensible man whether English or Irish who will not agree that it should be done?

All that England, all that Lloyd George needs to do tomorrow is to say "Ireland is Free!" and hundreds of thousands of Irishmen will volunteer, and millions of unsolicited money will pour in to send an army of Free Irishmen, not a vassal-army of make-believe Englishmen, to France.

All that the Irish ask is the opportunity to fight as FREE MEN and to fly the Green Flag with the Gold Harp over their own trenches "Over There." Can a single American who loves that fair and free symbol of Liberty, the Stars and Stripes, fail to sympathize with Ireland in this tragic hour?

Even so, I say again; if England will not act in keeping with her oft-promised promises and set Ireland free, then the Irish should Volunteer and go in and die as men in bonds in protest against slavery. Never did men die for a higher cause than Liberty, and this fight against Germany is a fight for Human Liberty.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A thick cut of round steak makes a most appetizing dish cooked in a casserole. Wipe the steak and broil it for two minutes on each side to sear the meat and hold in its juice. Transfer it to a stone-covered dish, add one pint of Spanish sauce, one cupful of small onions which have been lightly browned in hot fat and four table-spoonfuls of any canned fruit juice or a little grape jelly. Cover and cook in a moderate oven for an hour and a quarter. Add one cupful of potato balls, which have also been browned, and send to the table in the casserole.

Spanish Sauce.—Cook together for ten minutes two tablespoonfuls of sweet fat, two of chopped onion, two of chopped carrot and one tablespoonful of chopped celery. Add two table-spoonfuls of flour and cook until a rich brown; add one pint of rich clear stock and stir until thick and smooth. Add one tablespoonful of chopped ham, one bay leaf, two cloves, a sprig of parsley, a blade of mace and salt and pepper to season. Simmer very slowly for two hours; add one table-spoonful of gelatin soaked in a quarter of a cupful of soup stock until soft; simmer for 15 minutes longer, skim and strain.

Combination Rarebit.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of grated cheese, half a pound of spaghetti cooked until tender, one cupful of minced cooked ham, two table-spoonfuls each of sweet fat and flour, a cupful of milk, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, a half cupful of dry crumbs mixed with two table-spoonfuls of ham fat. Butter a casserole. Melt the fat and add the flour and seasonings, then the milk and cheese, allowing the cheese to melt. Put a layer of spaghetti in the casserole, sprinkle with ham, add some sauce, continuing until all is used, having the crumbs on top. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. The proportions of ham, spaghetti and cheese may be varied to suit the amount of leftovers.

POLES DRIVEN TO GERMANY TO WORK

Hun Commander's Brutal Order Issued to Conquered and Helpless People.

Every Able-Bodied Man Forced to Leave His Starving Family and Labor Under Shocking Conditions for the Oppressor.

This I have seen. I could not believe it unless I had seen it through and through. For several weeks I lived with it; I went all about it and back of it; inside and out of it was shown to me—until finally I came to realize that the incredible was true. It is monstrous, it is unthinkable, but it exists. It is the Prussian system.—F. C. Walcott.
*****

F. C. Walcott, a member of the United States food administration, and during the time America was feeding the civilian populations of Belgium, Serbia and northern France an assistant of Mr. Hoover in these invaded countries, has pictured in a graphic way the conditions he found among the people it was his duty to help. After describing the terrible conditions in Poland in 1916, the millions that were dying of starvation, the hundreds of thousands of defenseless people that had been ruthlessly cut down by the sword of the German conqueror, he says:

In that situation, the German commander issued a proclamation. Every able-bodied Pole was bidden to Germany to work. If any refused, let no other Pole give him to eat, not so much as a mouthful, under penalty of German military law.

This is the choice the German government gives to the conquered Pole, to the husband and father of a starving family: Leave your family or die or survive as the case may be. Leave your country which is destroyed, to work in Germany for its further destruction. If you are obstinate, we shall see that you surely starve.

Staying with his folk, he is doomed and they are not saved; the father and husband can do nothing for them, he only adds to their risk and suffering. Leaving them, he will be cut off from his family, they may never hear from him again nor he from them. Germany will set him to work that a German workman may be released to fight against his own land and people. He shall be lodged in barracks, behind barbed wire entanglements, under armed guard. He shall sleep on the bare ground with a single thin blanket. He shall be scantily fed and his earnings shall be taken from him to pay for his food.

That is the choice which the German government offers to a proud, sensitive, high-strung people. Death or slavery.

When a Pole gave me that proclamation, I was boiling. But I had to restrain myself. I was practically the only foreign civilian in the country and I wanted to get food to the people. That was what I was there for and I must not for any cause jeopardize the undertaking. I asked Governor General von Beseler, "Can this be true?"

"Really, I cannot say," he replied. "I have signed so many proclamations; ask General Von Kries."

So I asked General von Kries. "General, this is a civilized people. Can this be true?"

"Yes," he said, "it is true"—with an air of adding, Why not?

I dared not trust myself to speak; I turned to go. "Wait," he said. And he explained to me how Germany, official Germany, regards the state of subject peoples.

innocent working men, the destruction of many millions of dollars of property, but that the actual work itself was carried out by Austrians. When the Alien Enemy bill was suggested, and the proclamation made by the President a few weeks ago, the Austrians were still untouched. We have been begging and pleading ever since that a declaration of war be made against Austria; and one of the most, one of the things that has delighted me most in many, many months was that magnificent statesman-like document presented to the American people by the President of the United States to-day, in which he does come out unequivocally for war with Austria. I have no doubt that one of the first acts of Congress will be to put through the legislation, and then we will be able to deal with the enemy alien with some measure of safety for ourselves.

One of our men went with Boy-Ed and von Papen once to the home of a prominent German-American in Brooklyn, and there, with them, listened to the declaration of the man who had blown up the Dupont plant at Wilmington and killed thirty-one workmen, and he came there with the blood fresh on his hands, and they opened a case of wine and drank wine all night to this great German victory. This was a victory against a peaceful, friendly nation, which was not versed in the diplomatic methods of Germany, which took these men on trust, who had been treated royally by our people, and who were stabbing us in the back, and attempting in every way they could to create sentiment of disloyalty among our people.

This three years' war against the United States that I talked of is a misnomer. This war began against the United States many years ago. This war against the United States on the part of Germany has been going on for twenty-five years. It started with our damnable exchange professorships to Berlin, with the gifts of the German emperor of 75 per cent plaster casts to Harvard and Yale; with the securing on our school boards, and on your school board in this city, men who at heart have been and are damnable traitors to the United States, men who have deliberately placed before the boys and girls of this country this insidious method that you have heard of to-night by my friend on the right, of weakening our mental caliber in every way they can; the lauding of all German methods; the German emperor. There was never a more damnable doctrine than this doctrine of good German people, bad German emperor. It is not so. The emperor is more popular in Germany to-day than he ever was in his life. No question about that. This talk about the good German people suffering under this Prussian despotism is all nonsense. The good German people are suffering under the yoke they have imposed on themselves.

This war, I believe, has already been worth to the world a thousand times more than it has cost in blood and treasure and in suffering; it has been worth more to Great Britain, because it took Great Britain with fifty years of rush and fluff, with all her domestic problems bearing her down, with the classes getting further and further away from the masses, and in three years, gentlemen, has made her a pure flame of loyalty. It has placed that country with all her dross burned away, at the head of her national efficiency, until she is to-day a greater nation among the nations of the world than she ever was before in her history.

France—the poor, worn-out, struggling, decadent, dying France—gentlemen, the name of France is the glorification of this war.

Jack Pickford in "Jack and Jill" Offering at Royal on Tuesday

Jack Pickford, the Paramount star with Louise Huff in "Jack and Jill," which is to be shown at the Royal Theatre on Tuesday evening, August 13, has been taking a short vacation having finished his part of the production in advance of Miss Huff.

There have been persistent rumors during that time that he intended joining the aviation corps at San Diego where he has been a constant visitor and where, indeed, he has been taking lessons in flying. His mother, however, recently denied this rumor, adding that were young Mr. Pickford a few years older she would have no objection, but saying, with a smile, that she preferred having him "under her wing" a few years more.

"I believe in some state of pre-existence, if there is such a thing, that I must have been a little Parisian apache, for the costume that I wear in 'Jack and Jill,' the newest Paramount photoplay in which I am starring with Jack Pickford, suited me so well and I so much enjoyed wearing it!" laughed demure Louise Huff the other day at the studios.

"The costume consists," she went on, "of a threadbare suit of thinnest serge, a home-made hat of bunched-up silk with a soiled plume over one ear and down-at-the-heel shoes. As to Mr. Pickford's costume, it corresponded in every respect and was, in fact, even worse looking than mine, as he was a prize fighter, penniless most of the time."
